January 2025

Abstract

Degendog is a decentralized, community-driven memecoin built on the principles of fun, inclusivity, and internet culture. Inspired by the iconic "Doge" meme and the growing trend of meme-based cryptocurrencies, Degendog aims to create a vibrant ecosystem where users can participate in a lighthearted, yet impactful, digital currency. This whitepaper outlines the vision, technology, tokenomics, and roadmap for Degendog.

1. Introduction

1.1 The Rise of Memecoins

Memecoins have emerged as a cultural phenomenon, combining humor, internet culture, and blockchain technology. Projects like Dogecoin and Shiba Inu have demonstrated the power of community-driven cryptocurrencies. Degendog seeks to build on this legacy while introducing unique features and a keen sense of community.

1.2 What is Degendog?

3. Technology

3.1 Blockchain

Degendog is built upon the Solana blockchain, leveraging its security, scalability, and widespread adoption. The use of Solana ensures compatibility with existing decentralized applications (dApps) and wallets for buyers to join the Pack.

3.2 Token Standard

Degendog is deployed on the Solana Network, ensuring seamless integration with decentralized exchanges (DEXs), wallets, and other Solana-based platforms.

4.3 Transaction Fees

Raydium typically charges a 0.25% fee on swaps conducted through its AMM pools.

This fee is distributed as follows:

- 0.22% goes to liquidity providers (LPs) as a reward for providing liquidity.
- 0.03% is allocated to the Raydium protocol treasury.
- There are no additional fees for withdrawing funds from Raydium's AMM pools. However, users must pay standard Solana network transaction fees (which are minimal, often less than $0.01).
- Since Raydium operates on the Solana blockchain, users must pay Solana's network fees for transactions. These fees are extremely low compared to Ethereum-based DEXs, typically costing 0.000005 SOL per transaction (less than $0.001).

5. Community and Governance

5.1 Community-Driven

Degendog is governed by its community, but we do have a Alpha pack leader who takes guidance from the pack as to where they want to go. Key decisions, such as charitable donations, partnerships, and future developments, are made through community voting.

5.2 Voting Mechanism

Degendog will utilize a strong community-based voting on all charity donations and other crazy events we plan ahead.

5.3 Community Rewards

Active community members are rewarded with DDOG tokens for their contributions, such as creating memes, participating in discussions, and promoting the project.
